All Indiana counties at 'high' or 'substantial' COVID-19 risk

BY BOB DEMAREE

All counties in Indiana now fall under the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's "high" and "substantial" risk category in terms of COVID-19 infections as well as all but one county in Kentucky.

Due to increasing coronvirus numbers, the King's Daughters' Hospital Convenient Care Center in Madison is expanding its COVID-19 testing hours. The testing site, located on the south (or back) side of the KDH Convenient Care Center, 445 Clifty Drive, will now test Monday through Friday from 1-7 p.m., and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. To schedule an appointment online, visit scheduling.coronavirus.in.gov or schedule by calling 211. Walk-in appointments are also available. Masks are required for everyone entering KDH Convenient Care for testing.

The CDC's latest data from Aug. 1-7 shows 76 of Indiana's counties at "high" risk including Jefferson and Switzerland counties, and 16 at "substantial" risk. In Kentucky, 120 of the state's counties are at "high" risk — including Trimble and Carroll counties — with only four at "substantial" risk. Hickman County in highly isolated far western Kentucky is showing at "moderate" risk.

For the CDC's guidelines, "high" transmission is 100 or more cases per 100,000 people or a positivity rate of 10% or higher. "Substantial" transmission is 50 to 100 cases per 100,000, or a positivity rate between 8% and 10%. "Moderate" transmission is 10 to 50 cases per 100,000 people, or a positivity rate between 5% and 8%. "Low" transmission is considered no more than 10 cases per 100,000 people, or a test positivity rate of less than 5%.

In metrics by the Indiana Department of Health, both Jefferson and Switzerland counties are "Orange" for medium to high community spread. In ranking incident rates by the Kentucky Department of Public Health, both Trimble and Carroll counties are "Red" for high community spread. Trimble's incidence rate is 43.8% and Carroll's incidence rate is 40.3%.

JCSO using cultural diversity training to build understanding

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Officers with the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department went back to school recently for some training on cultural diversity that could possibly help them interact better with the public by seeing law enforcement from both sides of the badge.

The six-hour Indiana State Police workshop held at Hanover College was conducted by two state police officers who have given the presentation to hundreds of officers across the state in an effort to help police understand how they are perceived in public and what cultural fears and concerns some members of the public may feel about police. They showed videos of tense — and sometimes dangerous — police interactions with the public and then discussed ways to respond better in a similar situation.

"The focus is on helping law enforcement to understand and think like the person inside the car they are stopping," Sheriff Dave Thomas said of the program. "It gives them a little different viewpoint on the way that person maybe is thinking when they stop them. We in law enforcement don't always think of the people we pull over as being in fear of law enforcement but some of them are — and there are sometimes communication barriers — so the way we approach the situation can help alleviate that fear and result in a much better contact with the public."

Thomas said it's goes much deeper than race and gender and includes religion, nationality, age, family and past history with law enforcement as well as a number of other factors. The point is that some people have culturally acquired ideas about law enforcement and if an officer can learn and use the tools that help counter those beliefs, a motorist being stopped for a simple traffic infraction or courtesy such as a broken light can be resolved quickly without the situation escalating.

That makes for a much more pleasant — and safe — encounter for both the motorist and the officer and gradually builds trust and respect by both in each other.

If enough officers opt for

Studies: Shots give COVID-19 survivors big immune boost

BY LAURAN NEERGAAD AND MIKE STOBBE
AP MEDICAL WRITERS

Even people who have recovered from COVID-19 are urged to get vaccinated, especially as the extra-contagious delta variant surges — and a new study shows survivors who ignored that advice were more than twice as likely to get reinfected.

Friday's report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention adds to growing laboratory evidence that people who had one bout of COVID-19 get a dramatic boost in virus-fighting immune cells — and a bonus of broader protection against new mutants — when they're vaccinated.

"If you have had COVID-19 before, please still get vaccinated," said CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky. "Getting the vaccine is the best way to protect yourself and others around you, especially as the more contagious delta variant spreads around the country."

According to a new Gallup survey, one of the main reasons Americans cite for not planning to get vaccinated is the belief that they're protected since they already had COVID-19. From the beginning health authorities have urged survivors to get the broader protection vaccination promises. While the shots aren't perfect, they are providing strong protection against hospitalization and death even from the delta mutant.

Scientists say infection does generally leave survivors protected against a serious reinfection at least with a similar version of the virus, but blood tests have signaled that protection drops against worrisome variants.

The CDC study offers some real-world evidence.

Researchers studied Kentucky residents with a lab-confirmed coronavirus infection in 2020, the vast majority of them between October and December. They compared 246 people who got reinfected in May or June of this year with 492 similar survivors who stayed healthy. The survivors who never got vaccinated had a significantly higher risk of reinfection than those who were fully vaccinated, even though most had their first bout of COVID-19 just six to nine months ago.

> "The breadth of your antibodies and potency against variants is going to be far better than what you have right now."
> — Shane Crotty California's LaJolla Institute for Immunnology

A different variant of the coronavirus caused most illnesses in 2020, while the newer alpha version was predominant in Kentucky in May and June, said study lead author Alyson Cavanaugh, a CDC disease detective working with that state's health department.

That suggests natural immunity from earlier infection isn't as strong as the boost those people can get from vaccination while the virus evolves, she said.

There's little information yet on reinfections with the newer delta variant. But U.S. health officials point to early data from Britain that the reinfection risk appears greater with delta than with the once-common alpha variant, once people are six months past their prior infection.

"There's no doubt" that vaccinating a COVID-19 survivor enhances both the amount and breadth of immunity "so that you cover not only the original (virus) but the variants," Dr. Anthony Fauci, the U.S. government's top infectious disease expert, said at a recent White House briefing.

The CDC recommends full vaccination, meaning both doses of two-dose vaccines, for everyone.

But in a separate study published Friday in JAMA Network Open, Rush University researchers reported just one vaccine dose gives the previously infected a dramatic boost in virus-fighting immune cells, more than people who have never been infected get from two shots.

Other recent studies published in Science and Nature show the combination of a prior infection and vaccination also broadens the strength of people's immunity against a changing virus. It's what virologist Shane Crotty of California's La Jolla Institute for Immunology calls "hybrid immunity."

Vaccinated survivors "can make antibodies that can recognize all kinds of variants even if you were never exposed to the variant," Crotty said. "It's pretty sweet."

One warning for anyone thinking of skipping vaccination if they had a prior infection: The amount of natural immunity can vary from person to person, possibly depending on how sick they were to begin with. The Rush University study found four of 29 previously infected people had no detectable antibodies before they were vaccinated — and the vaccines worked for them just like they work for people who never had COVID-19.

Why do many of the previously infected have such a robust response to vaccination? It has to do with how the immune system develops multiple layers of protection.

After either vaccination or infection, the body develops antibodies that can fend off the coronavirus the next time it tries to invade. Those naturally wane over time. If an infection sneaks past them, T cells help prevent serious illness by killing virus-infected cells — and memory B cells jump into action to make lots of new antibodies.

Those memory B cells don't just make copies of the original antibodies. In immune system boot camps called germinal centers, they also mutate antibody-producing genes to test out a range of those virus fighters, explained University of Pennsylvania immunologist John Wherry.

The result is essentially a library of antibody recipes that the body can choose from after future exposures — and that process is stronger when vaccination triggers the immune system's original memory of fighting the actual virus.

With the delta variant's super infectiousness, getting vaccinated despite a prior infection "is more important now than it was before to be sure," Crotty said. "The breadth of your antibodies and potency against variants is going to be far better than what you have right now."

Ride operator charged with murder in brawl at Jackson Co. Fair

BROWNSTOWN — A ride operator at a southern Indiana county's fair has been charged with murder following the death of a man who fell unconscious during a closing time brawl, authorities said.

Zachariah Konkle, 32, allegedly rendered Michael Steele unconscious while pinning him to the ground during the July 27 fight at the Jackson County Fair, prosecutors said. Steele died July 31 in a hospital.

An autopsy found Steele's death to be a homicide by asphyxiation. His death prompted prosecutors to elevate Konkle's initial strangulation charge to a murder charge.

During his initial hearing last week a judge appointed a public defender for Konkle, who is being held without bond at the Jackson County Jail in Brownstown, about 70 miles south of Indianapolis.

According to court records, the fight unfolded when a family told Konkle, who operated the Black Widow ride, that someone at a nearby game had made fun of their child with special needs.

Konkle told the family he'd take care of the problem and then punched a game operator in the head while accusing him of making fun of an autistic child, the records state.

When the game operator denied doing so, witnesses said Konkle walked over to Steele, threatened to punch him and shouted at him until Steele threw a punch. The men then fell to the ground, where witnesses said Konkle put Steele in a head lock and punched him five to six times.

Konkle later told police he estimated he laid on Steele's chest for a minute, maybe two, before he went limp.

A woman told police she tried to perform CPR on Steele until Konkle pushed her off him, saying she was doing it incorrectly. He then performed CPR until police arrived and arrested him, records state.

Psychiatrists to assess Clarksville man charged in grisly death

JEFFERSONVILLE — A southern Indiana man charged with killing a woman whose decapitated, mutilated body was found inside her burning apartment will be evaluated by psychiatrists to determine whether he has an intellectual disability.

A Clark County judge issued an order last week calling for two psychiatrists to be appointed to assess Brian Williams and report their findings back to the court.

Williams' public defender Bryan Abell had filed a motion Aug. 1 asking for the Clarksville man to be examined to determine, among other things, whether he has a "significantly subaverage level of functioning."

Williams, 36, is charged with murder and arson in the death of 67-year-old Melody Gambetty, whose body was found by firefighters responding to a fire in her Clarksville apartment on July 26, the day after police say she was killed.

Gambetty had been decapitated and other body parts had been removed. Those body parts were later found in a suitcase at Williams' home, police said.

Investigators believe Williams returned to Gambetty's apartment a day after her death and started a fire to cover up evidence.

Giving up on dating

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I want to know why people think it's OK to harass and abuse other people. My ex brought his girlfriend home, and they spent the night in the garage. That was when we were still married.

Then he took my 5-year-old daughter out on dates with the girlfriend, and he abused and harassed me for a year to try to get me to abandon the house and my daughter so he wouldn't have to pay child support.

During this ordeal, I was ripped off by a lawyer who knew my ex was harassing me and did nothing. My ex and the girl are not together anymore, but I later found out that the girlfriend was hitting my daughter on her hands to punish her when she did something wrong.

I just don't get why there are horrible people in the world who do awful things and don't think they've done anything wrong. It is not unusual for them to turn the situation on you, acting as if you deserved it.

After all this, I'm done with men. I don't even date. It ain't worth it. I talk to people on chat sites, and they tell me they don't date for the same reasons. Being alone in this day and age is just the better way to go. I feel so broken and empty inside; no one would want me anyway. I am ruined, and no one seems to care.

So, I just want to know — why?! — Someone Who Just Wants to Know Why

Dear Know Why: Hurt people hurt people. Whether they were hurt when they were children and are repeating the same patterns or they were hurt when they were adults — it doesn't matter where the meanness came from. Being cruel to other human beings never feels good in the long run.

I'm not sure that making blanket statements, such as saying that you are finished with dating forever, is going to make you feel better in the long run. Just commit to only surrounding yourself with people who lift you up and have your best interests at heart. I would also let your ex know that his ex-girlfriend is never allowed to be around your daughter again. Child abuse is a serious crime and needs to be treated as such.

Dear Annie: I am disabled, and I find it difficult to deal with people who seem to be critical of my ailment or who think there is nothing wrong with me.

This all started when I was 25 and hurt myself at work. That was followed by failed lower back surgery. My injuries are not visible at all. I'm 52 now and still get the looks. I have had the police called several times for parking with my handicapped placard because people have doubted my injury.

It is extremely embarrassing and hurtful. However, I look at it like this: Those same people who give me looks or make snide remarks are the ones who would not think twice about using anything that was offered to them if they were handicapped.

Here's another thing to think about: By denying yourself the help you need, you are not allowing yourself the best care possible, nor are you truly taking care of yourself. If you are disabled, YOU must always come first. As the penguins from "Madagascar" would say, "Just smile and wave, boys; just smile and wave." — Surviving and Living Life with a Disability

Dear Living Life with Disability: Thank you for sharing your perspective. I hope it empowers others to smile and wave.

The benefits of a phone break

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I made the decision to put down my phone for a while, and the results have been wonderful.

Today was my "allowed" day to pick up my phone again. I had given myself a three-day restriction, and today was the fourth day. During those three days, I only answered for my dad calling. He's 86, and I don't want to miss one minute of his time with us. But that was all I allowed myself to do.

I cannot believe how much I have gotten done in my little apartment. It's all shiny and organized again.

I am going to follow this rule weekly. I believe it is the best idea I've ever had, and it's good to see others have come to the same conclusion.

I've got a great movie waiting for me, so I'm putting this phone down again to enjoy my time. — Feeling Free Again

Dear Feeling Free Again: When we say no to certain behaviors, we say yes and open the door to other positive behaviors. Thank you for sharing your experience.

Dear Annie: I was in an abusive, controlling marriage when my children were small, and I couldn't leave until they created their own lives. I finally got out of this marriage, after 37 years, thank God!

While I found my way out, my problem is in how best to move on — to create my own life away from him. Sometimes, I feel lonely and scared, and at times, I question whether I will be able to make it on my own.

I know that's how he made me feel — like I couldn't do anything for myself — and he has destroyed so many relationships in my life. He has turned so many people against me. He did this with lies and by making people believe him.

I finally realized that he was a narcissist who was very cunning and always fooling me. Please see if you can give me some support and advice not to let this person ever fool me again with his lies. Thank you. — Married to a Narcissist

Dear Married: Congratulations on leaving what was a terrible situation for you. There are support groups you could join that would help you recover from the abuse that you suffered from your husband. Look up https://narcissistabusesupport.com/narcissist-abuse-support-groups/.

The best thing is that you are away from his toxicity, which can only leave you feeling drained and hollowed out. It's time to rebuild the pieces of your self-esteem that he spent years destroying. Allow other people, such as a good therapist or members of a support group, to help you put back those pieces.

Dear Annie: I just want to put this out there. I am a 63-year-old woman. I was bullied in school for no reason at all. I was never the type to fight back or say anything, and after all these years, it still bothers me. I was afraid to tell my parents what I was going through. I taught my kids to come to me if they were ever treated like this in school. Please, parents, question your children; ask them if things were OK in school. Bullying is not right at any age! — Still Have Scars

Dear Scars: I am sorry that you had to experience bullying at all. You are correct that the scars still remain. I hope that with the help of a good therapist, you can heal some of that past hurt so that you can be free of pain.

Holcomb announces $1.3 million for third naloxone distribution

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana will fund a $1.3 million distribution of the opioid reversal agent naloxone to ensure the medication reaches Hoosiers who are at risk of drug overdoses, state officials have announced.

Overdose Lifeline Inc., an Indiana nonprofit that helps those affected by substance use disorder, will distribute 35,000 doses of naloxone to first responders, families, friends and others who are likely to be the first on the scene if someone overdoses.

Funds were made available by the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration state opioid response grant.

This is the state's third investment in naloxone distribution since May 2020, when Holcomb announced the state would earmark $1 million for 25,000 doses of the medication amidst the COVID-19 pandemic.

"Each dose of naloxone represents another life that could be saved and another opportunity to engage individuals with substance use disorder in treatment," Gov. Eric Holcomb said in a statement Thursday. "The effects of COVID-19 continue to linger, and now more than ever we must make treatments like naloxone readily available to any Hoosier who may encounter an individual experiencing an overdose."

Indiana reported a 33% increase in fatal overdoses in 2020, according to provisional data released in July by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Naloxone, a medication approved to prevent overdose by opioids, is given to individuals who showing signs of opioid overdose to block the toxic effects of the overdose.

this approach in policing — and Thomas said that's what he wants his department to do — they can change the culture between law enforcement and offenders and that could lead to fewer encounters that escalate from a routine contact for a minor infraction into more serious charges that put the safety of the officer, the suspect and the public at risk.

Capt. Ruben Marte, who is with the ISP in Indianapolis, and Major Todd Smith, who serves as chief counsel for the ISP, said they have been presenting the program about seven years and have spoken to more than 7,000 officers as well as students and members of the community because the message they bring is worth hearing by all involved. The way people encounter other people often impacts how well they get along and whether they like and trust someone or fear and distrust them.

Mark Campbell

Indiana State Police Capt. Ruben Marte and Major Todd Smith, chief counsel for the ISP, lead a workship on cultural awareness and diversity for Jefferson County Sheriff Department deputies at Hanover College.

Smith said a key is for officers to form a rapport with the public — a public that doesn't always feel comfortable speaking to police depending on where they're from and how their community gets along with police. He said residents of Jefferson County may feel less anxiety when stopped by an officer than those in other communities and local officers need to take that into consideration when dealing with people.

If a crime has been committed or a routine traffic stop evolves into an arrest, the officer still has a job to do and the public to protect, but a routine contact doesn't have to start out that way if the officer and the person stopped can begin on a more common ground. Starting on common ground also increases the chances of the encounter ending peacefully.

"We just need to understand each others' point of view," Marte said. "It's building a bridge of understanding between the police and the public."

"I just hope after this that my officers have a better understanding of how they're seen by members of the public depending on how they are raised in certain cultures," Thomas said. "This presentation is very good in that it teaches them how to form a rapport with people."

Cubs' Wilber signs to run at Georgetown

David Campbell

BY JORDAN BEAR

Isabel Wilber has spent four years running for her father gradually getting better and better. Now she'll have to get used to running for someone other than her dad after she signed her Letter of Intent on Friday to continue her cross country and track career at Georgetown College in Kentucky.

Wilber, who had her most successful year in 2020, helped lead the Lady Cubs cross country team to their first sectional championship in a decade. In the Spring of 2021, after being away from the track for more than a year because of the coronavirus, she helped lead Madison to a very successful year under coach Patrick Maschino.

Wilber said Georgetown was perfect for what she wanted in a college.

"I visited the campus and it was just perfect. The education, the program, plus I talked with the coach and it was just everything I wanted for a college," Wilber said. "It's also really close to home so I know my family won't be very far. As soon as I left the visit, I knew it's where I wanted to be."

Josh Wilber said he's happy to see his daughter continue her running career.

"Blessed is the word I would use. Not only as a father, but as a coach as well. She's the fourth athlete in the last three years to sign to run at the next level and it really speaks to our program," Wilber said. "Our athletes are going to represent our program so well at the next level and it shows what a great program that we have at Madison and the type of athletes that we are molding."

Track and Field will also be awaiting Isabel at the college level and Maschino said he knows she'll be very successful.

"I'm so proud of her. She's not only a great athlete, but also and incredible teammate and even better person," Maschino said. "She's so reliable as far as track goes. I know that every single meet I can rely on her getting the first, second, or third spot in the two-mile run. Every single meet I know that she is going to get the team points."

Georgetown coach Luke Garnett said Wilber will be a perfect fit for his program.

"I'm so excited to bring Isabel in. She fits in right with what we want with our program, hard work, being a good teammate and most importantly academics," Garnett said. "As a team we average a GPA of above 3.7. We know Isabel will contribute to that as well being how gifted she is academically. I also know she's going to work hard. At the college level of cross country you have to work hard or else you won't make it. Everyone is good at this level and I know she will be an extremely hard worker every day."

Wilber can now focus on her senior year where the cross country season is upon her. Madison's first meet will be the Lou Knoble race on Aug. 21 at Madison. Wilber also said she's ready to help her team defend the sectional championship.

"It was the greatest feeling ever holding that trophy last year and it would incredible to be able to do it again my senior year," she said. "I also would love to be able to make it to semistate for myself personally. Some of the girls got to do it last year and I want to able to run at that level to close out my cross country career here at Madison."

Pacers' Hines sets 9-hole school record

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison's girls golf team wrapped up a busy first week of the season with a sixth-place finish in the 14-team Greensburg Invitational Saturday at North Branch Golf Course.

The Cubs shot a 293 — a 31-stroke drop from the 424 the team opened the season with at Bloomington South on Monday — a fact that left coach Jake Shockley smiling.

"After a full week of golf, we're already showing tremendous progress. After a 424 at Bloomington and a home loss to Jennings, it was pretty cool to see the ladies shoot under 400 already and to be under Jennings County twice since then," Shockley said. "We have more work ahead to keep getting better, but the team's work ethic has been very good to start the year."

Senior Keara Eder once again led Madison, firing a four-over 76 to place second overall and miss low-medalist honors by just two strokes. Emma Weiler of Batesville led the way with a 74 and Ellie McDonald of Heritage Christian was third with a 79.

Grace Bronkella shot a 90 for Madison while Gracie Gasaway had a 111, Reagan Warren carded a 116 and Lilly Fox had a 125.

"Keara had one of those rounds she just had to grind out. Nothing was quite clicking today, but she pushed through for a nice second place," Shockley said. "Grace and Reagan really came up big today, too. This was probably the most in control I've ever seen Bronkella. She was just smooth today. I really hope that Reagan can continue her progress. It would be really big for the team.

"I'm really proud of their effort this week. We played four matches in six days, but I think it might've toughened us up a bit."

Batesville won the team title with a score of 339 while Heritage Christian was second with a 364 and Franklin County was third with a 366.

Madison doesn't get much of a break. The Cubs were scheduled to go to Henryville on Monday and host Jeffersonville on Thursday.

Pacers' Hines sets record

Switzerland County's Hailey Hines broke the school record for a nine-hole match in the Pacers' tri-meet with Shawe and Southwestern at Butler Falls Golf Course in Hanover on Friday.

Hines shot an even-par 36 which bested the mark set by her coach Natalie (Daugherty) Wheeler at the school more than 15 years ago. Her score was good enough to claim medalist honors by six strokes.

Despite Hines' low score, Shawe came out on top as a team with a consistent score of 189. Three of the Hilltoppers' four players broke 50 on the day with Kira Wells' 42 leading the way. Bailey Kilgore and Yolett Perez each had 47 and Gia Craig carded a 53.

"I'm super proud of the way the girls played tonight. They were 46 strokes better than their team score on Monday, which is a testament to the work they've put in," Shawe coach David Hertz said. "Bailey and Yolett had personal bests and Kira and Gia were one stroke off of theirs. Our goal is to simply play better every time we go out and that's exactly how this first week went. Can't wait to get back at it next Tuesday at Sunrise."

Switzerland shot a 206 as a team with Lily Williams firing a 55, Brooklyn Flanders a 56 and Kenna Perkins a 59. Southwestern was unable to field a complete team with Ximena Vilchis-Harrizon shooting a 48, Hannah Simpson a 61 and Kayla Boscia a 66.

All three schools return to action today, this time at Sunrise Golf Course in Madison. Shawe and Southwestern then compete at Jac-Cen-Del on Thursday and Switzerland heads to South Dearborn on Thursday.

Area football teams got their first taste of action with a series of scrimmages this past weekend.

Carroll County hosted "PantherFest," a jamboree-style event which also featured Fleming County and Bracken County in attendance. Trimble County hosted Eminence in a scrimmage while Madison and Switzerland County each had intrasquad scrimmages.

The events were just a kickoff to what will be a busy next few weeks for area teams. This week, all four will hold their final scrimmages before the season begins next week.

Madison will host Salem on Friday for a scrimmage before opening its first season after leaving the Hoosier Hills Conference on Saturday, Aug. 21 when the Cubs travel to Harrodsburg, Kentucky, to take on Mercer County. Madison heads to South Dearborn on Friday, Aug. 27 then hosts Carroll County on Friday, Sept. 3 in its home opener.

Carroll County hosts Atherton on Friday in its final scrimmage then opens the season at home against North Oldham on Friday, Aug. 20. The Panthers then host Henry County on Friday, Aug. 27.

Trimble County plays in a three-team scrimmage at LaRue County on Thursday to wrap up its preseason. The Raiders will face LaRue and Fort Knox in the round-robin. Trimble is then idle for the first week of the regular season before opening the 2021 season on Friday, Aug. 27 at home against Caverna.

Switzerland County heads to Clarksville for a scrimmage on Friday then opens the season on Friday, Aug. 20 at home against Crawford County. The Pacers then head to Gallatin County on Friday, Aug. 27.

Peyton's Place is Hall of Fame, with Woodson, Megatron

BY BARRY WILNER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

CANTON, Ohio — Peyton's Place is now in Canton at the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The only five-time NFL MVP and a two-time Super Bowl winner who left the game five years ago with a slew of passing records was enshrined Sunday night with other members of the class of 2021. The stadium rocked with cheers from fans in Colts blue or Broncos orange — the two franchises he took to the top — when Manning was introduced.

The man who could spend seemingly endless moments changing plays at the line then jabbed at the time limits set by the hall because of 19 acceptance speeches this weekend. The 2020 class and a special centennial class had their enshrinements delayed a year by the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The 2021 induction class wants to thank those previous inductees who gave long-winded acceptance speeches," said Manning, who was presented by his father, Archie, himself a College Football Hall of Fame member. "Forcing us to have a whopping six minutes to recap our football careers. I want to give a special thanks to my old rival Ray Lewis for being here tonight. Ray just finished giving his speech that he started in 2018."

Joining Manning in this year's class were two other first-time eligibles, defensive back Charles Woodson — who beat out Manning for the 1997 Heisman Trophy — and receiver Calvin Johnson. Also in the class were safety John Lynch, a seven-time finalist before getting in; guard Alan Faneca, a premier blocker for 13 seasons, winning a Super Bowl with Pittsburgh and making six All-Pro teams; coach Tom Flores, who led the Raiders to two titles; Cowboys wideout Drew Pearson, a 1970s NFL All-Decade player; and Steelers super scout Bill Nunn.

Manning gave a shoutout to Tom Brady, who he invited to the ceremony, noting that it will be 2035 before Brady, now 44, will have been retired long enough to be enshrined.

As for the NFL itself, Manning urged anyone involved in the league to "ignite the future of the sport. If not, we are not doing football justice. It is about nurturing football to live another day, another year ... The future of this game is ours to shape."

Flores, the first man to win Super Bowls as a player, assistant coach and head coach, was a backup quarterback for the Chiefs in the fourth Super Bowl, a Raiders assistant to John Madden in the 11th, and head coach when the Raiders won the 15th and 18th games.

Flores, of Mexican descent, long ago became a hero to the Latino community, a symbol of success on and off the field. He emphasized the importance of passion on the road to success.

"You don't get there alone," he said. "It doesn't happen in a vacuum. A lot of people helped me ... Raider Nation is everywhere."

So is Steeler Nation, particularly this weekend when five members of the organization were inducted. Faneca overcame bouts with epilepsy to become one of the premier offensive linemen in the NFL; he takes daily pills to deal with his condition and has not had a seizure in about eight years.

"Instinctively I knew I was not going to allow anything to prevent me from fulfilling my dream," he said. "Epilepsy is part of me, but that does not define me. We are in charge of our destiny.

Woodson, who is from Ohio — though he went to Michigan — began by singing praise for his mother, who presented him.

"I love my mama, man," Woodson said, his eyes welling up. "look no further than my mama to know where I get it from: the passion, the hard work. It comes from my mama."

Woodson was 1998 Defensive Rookie of the Year with Oakland and won Defensive Player of the Year honors 11 years later as a Packer. He also won a Super Bowl with Green Bay.

Johnson, just 35 — only Jim Brown and Gale Sayers were younger inductees — finished his nine-year career with 731 receptions for 11,619 yards and 83 TDs. He explained how, despite his seemingly indestructible nickname of Megatron, he played nearly all of his career in pain.

"I still made up my mind I'd be the most dominant receiver in the NFL," said.

Lynch, a finalist for seven years before getting the call, who won a Super Bowl in Tampa Bay and also starred with Denver for four seasons after 11 with the Bucs. He was the key to the Tampa-2 defense, a "coach on the field" according to his former coach, Tony Dungy, and one of the surest tackler the NFL has seen.

"What a privilege to be inducted in this brotherhood," Lynch said. "It takes a lot of belief to get to this stage. However, belief has to be nurtured time and time again. One person can make a difference. I encourage each and every one of you to be that person."

Pearson was a standout receiver for Dallas from 1973-83, a three-time All-Pro who made the NFL's 1970s All-Decade Team. He was the only position player from that squad not in the hall.

Pearson, of course, caught Roger Staubach's winning touchdown pass in a 1975 playoff game at Minnesota that is considered the original Hail Mary. But he should be recognized for 557 catches, including postseason, for nearly 9,000 yards and 56 touchdowns.

"It's not about how long it takes to get here," Pearson said, "but more about how you wait. My wait was supported by my faith."

Mahle, Reds beat Pirates 3-2, complete 4-game sweep

BY JEFF WALLNER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Tyler Mahle struck out 10, Kyle Farmer delivered another key hit and the Cincinnati Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 Sunday for a four-game sweep.

Nick Castellanos added a double and scored as playoff-chasing Cincinnati continued its dominance of the Pirates, improving to 9-1 against them this season. Dating to last season, the Reds have won 13 of 14 games from Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati is a season-high 10 games over the .500 mark.

Mahle (9-3) allowed six hits without walk in seven innings. He pitched seven innings for just the third time this season.

"I didn't make a lot of mistakes," Mahle said. "I didn't walk guys. Getting to the seventh is good for team. The bullpen had two good innings. We were pounding the zone and got soft contact"

Mahle, who going into the game had a 2.06 ERA on the road but 6.18 at home, fanned six through the first three innings, allowing only a soft single by Ke'Bryan Hayes. He retired nine straight before Bryan Reynolds doubled and scored on Anthony Alford's single in the fourth.

The Reds handed Mahle the lead when Farmer, who since the All-Star break leads the major leagues in hitting, had an RBI double off Bryse Wilson (2-5) to cap a three-run fourth.

Castellanos doubled and scored in the fourth. The All-Star outfielder is 3 for 16 with a homer, double, and two RBIs since coming off the injured list Thursday following a fractured right wrist.

IN MEMORIAM

Prior to Sunday's game, the Reds honored Hall of Fame second baseman Joe Morgan, who passed away in October at the age of 77. Hall of Fame catcher Johnny Bench and Hall of Fame shortstop Barry Larkin were on hand for the ceremonies for the former Reds star. A floral arrangement was placed at Morgan's statue outside Great American Ball Park. His uniform No. 8 was stamped in the infield dirt behind second base.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Reds: RHP Lucas Sims was reinstated from the 10-day injured list. He'd been on the IL since June 24 with a right elbow sprain. Right-hander Brad Brach was placed on the 10-day IL with a right shoulder impingement.

Reds 10, Pirates 0 (Friday) — Mike Moustakas went 3 for 4 with three doubles and two RBIs in his return from the injured list to spark the Cincinnati Reds to a 10-0 rout of the Pittsburgh Pirates on Friday night.

"It felt really good," Moustakas said. "I had an opportunity to drive in runs early. It was really cool, to be out for so long and having a chance to drive in runs. It couldn't have worked out better."

Tucker Barnhart hit a three-run homer, Jesse Winker and Jonathan India each hit solo homers and the Reds moved within three games of the Padres for the second NL Wild Card spot.

For the sixth time this season, the Reds scored at least 10 runs for Wade Miley (9-4), who allowed only six hits through seven innings.

"That was fun watching the boys hit," Miley said. "I hope we can do it again in five days. I try to act like it's 0-0."

Moustakas — who came off the injured list on Friday after missing 68 games with a right heel contusion — had a two-run double in his first at-bat.

Winker led off the second with his 22nd homer of the season. Moustakas doubled and scored on Kyle Farmer's single and the Reds led 9-0 after two innings.

India's solo homer off Kyle Keller in the sixth capped the scoring. It was his fourth homer in seven games.

DOUBLING UP

Moustakas doubled three times in a game for the first time in his career. He is the first Reds batter with three doubles in a game since Jose Peraza did it on Aug. 15, 2018 against Cleveland.

Reds 11, Pirates 3 (Saturday) — Jesse Winker went 3 for 5 with a homer, double and tied a career high with six RBIs to lift the Cincinnati Reds over the Pittsburgh Pirates 11-3 on Saturday night.

Fewer medals, more heart for U.S. at a most unusual Olympics

BY EDDIE PELLS
AP NATIONAL WRITER

TOKYO — Kara Winger is the American record-holder in the javelin throw who just wrapped up her fourth Olympics. She has never finished higher than sixth place.

When she got the call over the weekend telling her she would be carrying the flag Sunday for the United States at the closing ceremony of the Tokyo Games, her first reaction was "shock."

"I expected tweets with people saying 'What has she done?' " Winger said.

Turns out, an awful lot over a career that has spanned two decades. That the American athletes chose her as flagbearer is a fitting lens through which to view the U.S. accomplishments at these Games.

The Americans won 113 medals, which, for the fifth straight Summer Games, was double-digits more than the nearest competition. It was, however, eight fewer than what they won five years ago in a Rio de Janeiro Olympics with fewer events.

When the athletes voted for Winger to represent them, they tapped into the core message resonating inside a fractured, fractious U.S. Olympic family over the last few years: The medals shouldn't matter more than the athletes who win them. Or sometimes not matter at all.

"We spent a ton of energy on creating an environment where people could be heard, and feel safe to be heard," said Sarah Hirshland, who came on as the CEO of the U.S. Olympic and Paralympic Committee in 2018.

She was tasked with repairing the damage from sexual-abuse cases that led athletes to wonder if they were valued for more than simply what they won.

If Winger as flagbearer is one sign that the USOPC has made some headway, then Simone Biles gets credit for making sure the message stayed front-and-center despite the hectic, pandemic-tainted run-up to an Olympics.

The willingness of the highest-profile athlete at the Games to step away because it didn't feel right, and to place her personal welfare over victory for herself and country, was startling at first.

Much more than costing medals, what Biles did was re-center the focus. As the Olympics moved into their second week, all but the most cynical observers started celebrating athletes for winning bronze — or nothing — even if they were picked to win gold.

"These are not the USOPC's medals, these are the athletes' medals," Hirshland explained as the Biles decision was still reverberating.

That was part of what Hirshland pitched as a new outlook for the USOPC.

Leading up to the Games, the USOPC introduced new mental-health offerings and created a new athlete-service division — first as a nod to the fallout from the sex-abuse cases, then as a resource to help athletes cope with a yearlong delay and the COVID pandemic.

Their offices stayed busy over the 17 days in Tokyo.

In the end, COVID-19 knocked out only four of the 600-plus athletes officially named to the team, a remarkable logistical challenge in a pandemic that came with its share of stumbles and critiques. Some athletes who worked all their lives to get to this point were bitter that they couldn't share the trip with friends, family or fans.

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Darius Leonard always believed he was the best linebacker in football. The Indianapolis Colts made sure he gets paid like it.

The two-time All-Pro agreed on Sunday to a five-year contract extension worth $99.25 million that includes $52 million in guaranteed money, according to a person with knowledge of the deal. The person requested anonymity because the team has not released the terms publicly.

It tops the five-year, $95.225 million contract Fred Warner recently signed with San Francisco, making Leonard the NFL's highest-paid linebacker — at least for now.

"I'm a competitor, so if you aren't first, you're last,"" Leonard said while wearing a Colts cowboy hat. "Just to have my name right now at the top, that's something I don't take for granted. I have to continue to go out and prove I can play."

Team officials made the announcement while Indy's players were still on the practice field and in between Saturday's Hall of Fame induction speech from Edgerrin James and Sunday's scheduled induction speech by Peyton Manning. Coach Frank Reich, who once coached Manning, was expected to attend the ceremony.

Everybody sees the impact Leonard makes whether he's on the field or on the sideline, a place he has been for the past two weeks as he recovers from ankle surgery in early June. His energy is contagious, he plays with a chip on his shoulder and refuses to settle for second best. Reich doesn't expect that to change now, either.

"He doesn't know how to turn it off, you know what I mean?" Reich said. "He's got so much pride in how he plays and how he performs, the standard that he holds himself to. That would be the least of my worries for him. Just happy for him and it's well-deserved."

Leonard wanted to get everything finished before Indy's Sept. 12 season opener against Seattle. And he already knows what he wants to do with the money: Buy a land plot so he can build a house, and helping his family.

Penix's return has Hoosiers hoping to exceed 2020 successes

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — The Indiana Hoosiers expect quarterback Michael Penix Jr. to start the season opener at Iowa — even if he doesn't take a hit until Sept. 4.

And Penix's return has the Hoosiers thinking big again.

On Monday, coach Tom Allen told reporters Penix's recovery remains on schedule, a development that could help the Hoosiers exceed last year's achievements.

"We've been pretty clear on our goals, haven't shied away from it," Allen said Thursday. "We finished second in the Big Ten East last year. Our goal is to play in the Big Ten championship and win the game. There are a lot of things that have to happen before that occurs."

Replicating the breakout 2020 season won't be easy.

Indiana cracked the top 10 for the first time since 1967, posted its best conference record (6-1) in more than a half century and came within a whisker of playing for the third league crown in school history.

The Hoosiers also know how critical it is to have a healthy Penix on the field.

His nifty 2-point conversion run in overtime gave Indiana it second win over longtime powerhouse Penn State. Two weeks later, Penix threw for 342 yards and three touchdowns while snapping a 24-game losing streak in the Michigan series. Two weeks after that, he nearly led the Hoosiers back from a 28-point, third-quarter deficit at Ohio State only to come up one touchdown short. Still, his sensational play converted doubters into believers.

Then in November, Penix suffered a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee — his third straight season-ending injury and the second time he'd hurt the ACL in the right knee. While Indiana continued to win, the lingering offseason question became Penix's health.

He's expected to participate in Friday's first practice albeit with one restriction.

"We're not going to tackle him," offensive coordinator Nick Sheridan said. "Mike is not going to get touched, so if we're doing a team drill that could potentially put him in harm's way, we'll be mindful of that. I think any time you're coming off an injury and going into practice, you have to be careful because the volume and intensity of practice is much higher."

Sheridan believes creative play-calling also can help Penix limit the big shots he's occasionally taken from bigger defenders in the middle of the field. A revamped offensive line also appears capable of keeping Penix upright.

Penix doesn't appear to be worried. The 6-foot-3, 218-pound redshirt junior walked to the podium Thursday without a hitch in his step or any detectable fear of suffering yet another injury.

"What we want to prove is that last year wasn't a fluke, that we're a team that can compete with anybody," Penix said. "We have a lot of guys who didn't see the field a lot last year and who will make big plays for us this year We know what we're capable of and we need to be great."

One newcomer who could wind up in the mix is Donaven McCulley, a 6-foot-5, 200-pound freshman quarterback from Indianapolis.

With Penix restricted from contact, backup quarterback Jack Tuttle coming off shoulder surgery and third-string quarterback Dexter Williams II sitting out after tearing an ACL in spring practice, McCulley may need to take snaps.

"Donaven needs to be ready to play yesterday," Sheridan said. "We have to get him ready to go and that goes for every player in that room. I feel good about the leadership and toughness in that room, we've just got to make sure they're all ready to go."

And with the conference opener less than a month away, the Hoosiers understand there's no time to waste.

"A lot of expectations," Allen said. "That's been the challenge, is to go from believing, and I believe we have a team that believes, to now expecting a certain outcome on game day."

Purdue quarterbacks face 3rd straight battle to start opener

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — Jack Plummer finished second in each of Purdue's last two summer quarterback competitions.

Aidan O'Connell is trying to earn his second straight opening day start. And this time, former UCLA backup Austin Burton intends to put his name in the mix, too.

For a program seeking stability at football's most critical position, picking a winner may be the most important decision the Boilermakers make all year.

"You're looking for someone who can do it right all the time," co-offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach Brian Brohm said after Purdue's second practice. "It's consistent play and a guy teammates know every time they step in the huddle will make the play be successful, someone they believe in."

Over the past two seasons, it's been a revolving door with Plummer and O'Connell getting their share of snaps.

After losing the battle to Elijah Sindelar in 2019, Plummer replaced the injured starter in Week 2, then started the next six games before suffering a season-ending broken right ankle.

That's when O'Connell took over, closing out a victory over Nebraska and leading the Boilermakers past Northwestern before losing the season's final two games.

As Plummer fought his way back, O'Connell solidified his hold on the job and was named the starter for last season's shortened six-game schedule. He won the first two games before suffering a season-ending foot injury in a Week 3 loss to the Wildcats and giving way to Plummer, who lost the final three games only to presumably open camp in the No. 1 spot.

"You've got to bring it every play, every day, and if you don't you might not be playing," he said. "You've got to be sharp, got to be consistent, got to be focused and that's the way it should be."

Plummer has all the natural gifts. The strong-armed 6-foot-5, 220-pounder from Arizona came to Purdue as one of the top quarterbacks in the 2018 recruiting class.

With two older quarterbacks — Sindelar and David Blough — ahead of him on the depth chart, Plummer figured he'd eventually get a chance to become the next big star at the Cradle of Quarterbacks.

Instead, he didn't throw a pass as a freshman and spent went 2-7 as the starter over the past two seasons, going 232 of 365 for 2,541 yards, 19 touchdowns and 10 interceptions.

O'Connell was a two-sport high school star who joined the Boilermakers as a walk-on in 2017. The 6-3, 200-pound Illinois native has proven he's mobile enough to make plays on the run. He's 3-2 as the starter, having completed 191 of 300 throws for 2,017 yards, 15 TD passes and six interceptions.

"The game reps were priceless," he said. "The bullets are flying, the fire is hot. When you make a mistake in practice you don't really pay a price because you don't get hit but when you make a mistake in a game, you are literally physically punished."

Many believe the competition may again come down to Plummer and O'Connell.

At 6-2, 210 pounds, he appears to be a combination of Plummer and O'Connell. He moves well, has a strong enough arm and may be more accurate than the others. He's the son of former Northwestern quarterback Steve Burton and the grandson of former NFL player and College Football Hall of Famer Ron Burton.

Burton enrolled early at UCLA before transferring to Purdue in 2020 after making only one career start with the Bruins.

Burton might have had a stronger chance last year if spring football hadn't been canceled and the Big Ten hadn't modified the season after initially announcing it had been canceled. Now, though, a complete offseason and a full camp schedule could give Burton an opportunity to prove himself.

"I think I'm playing with more confidence because I have a better understanding of the system," he said. "I think whatever you do in you in life, if you have a better understanding, the better you do. I think my strengths are I run pretty well as well as my decision making."

And after failing to become bowl eligible each of the past two seasons, the first two misses during Jeff Brohm's head coaching career, the Boilermakers want to make sure they get this one right.

"I'm looking for the best decision-maker, the most accurate thrower and toughness," Brian Brohm said. "The guys know I grade that every single day at practice and I'm pretty up front about my grades, so they know it's a close competition."

NOTICE OF REAL PROPERTY
TAX SALE
Jefferson County Indiana
Beginning 10:00 AM Local Time,
September 8, 2021
Courthouse

Jefferson County

Pursuant to the laws of the Indiana General Assembly, notice is hereby given that the following described property is listed for sale for delinquent taxes and/or special assessments. The county auditor and county treasurer will apply on or after 08/20/2021 for a court judgment against the tracts or real property for an amount that is not less than the amount set out below and for an order to sell the tracts or real property at public auction to the highest bidder, subject to the right of redemption. Any defense to the application for judgment must be filed with the Jefferson County Circuit Court and served on the county auditor and treasurer before 08/20/2021. The court will set a date for a hearing at least seven (7) days before the advertised date of sale and the court will determine any defenses to the application for judgment at the hearing. The county auditor and the county treasurer are entitled to receive all pleadings, motions, petitions, and other filings related to the defense to the application for judgment.

Such sale will be held on 09/08/2021 at the Courthouse and that sale will continue until all tracts and real property have been offered for sale. At the discretion of local officials, the tax sale may switch to an online format. If those measures are taking place, the public auction will be conducted as an electronic sale under IC 6-1.1-24-2(b)10 at www.zeusauction.com commencing on the same date / time listed above. All location updates will be posted at www.sriservices.com prior to the tax sale.

Property will not be sold for an amount which is less than the sum of:

(A) the delinquent taxes and special assessments on each tract or item of real property; and
(B) the taxes and special assessments on the real property that are due and payable in the year of the sale, whether or not they are delinquent; and
(C) all penalties due on the delinquencies, and
(D) an amount prescribed by the county auditor that equals the sum of:
(1) twenty-five dollars ($25) for postage and publication costs; and
(2) any other costs incurred by the county that are directly attributable to the tax sale; and
(E) any unpaid costs due under IC 6-1.1-24-2(c) from a prior tax sale.

No property listed below shall be sold if, at any time before the sale, the Total Amount for Judgment is paid in full. If the real property is sold in the tax sale, the amount required to redeem such property will be 110% of the minimum bid for which the tract or real property was offered at the time of sale, if redeemed not more than six (6) months after the date of sale, or 115% of the minimum bid for which the tract or real property was offered at the time of sale, if redeemed more than six (6) months after the date of sale, plus the amount by which the purchase price exceeds the minimum bid on the real property plus five percent (5%) per annum interest on the amount by which the purchase price exceeds the minimum bid on the property. All taxes and special assessments upon the property paid by the purchaser subsequent to the sale, plus five percent (5%) per annum interest on those taxes and special assessments, will also be required to be paid to redeem such property.

In addition, IC 6-1.1-25-2 (e) states the total amount required for redemption may include the following costs incurred and paid by the purchaser or the purchaser's assignee or the county before redemption: (1) The attorney's fees and cost of giving notice under IC 6-1.1-25-4.5; (2) The costs of title search or examining and update the abstract of title for the tract or item of real property. The period of redemption shall expire on Thursday, September 08, 2022 for certificates sold in the tax sale. For certificates struck to the county, the period of redemption may expire Thursday, January 06, 2022.

If the tract or item of real property is sold for an amount more than the minimum bid and the property is not redeemed, the owner of record of the property who is divested of ownership at the time the tax deed is issued may have a right to the tax sale surplus.

The Auditor and Treasurer specifically reserve the right to withhold from the sale any parcel which has been listed in error, or which otherwise becomes ineligible for sale either prior to 09/08/2021 or during the duration of the sale.

This notice of real property tax sale, and the tax sale itself are undertaken and will be conducted pursuant to the requirements of the laws of the State of Indiana which regulate the sale of land for delinquent taxes, pursuant to I.C. 6-1.1-24-1 et seq.

The County does not warrant the accuracy of the street address or common description of the property, and a misstatement in the key number or street address does not invalidate an otherwise valid sale.

Minimum bid amounts are prescribed by law and are subject to change prior to the auction date.

Pursuant to IC 6-1.1-24-3(e), property descriptions may be omitted for properties appearing on the certified list in consecutive years. A complete property list may be obtained at www.sriservices.com or in an alternative form upon request.

Jackson fatigued during bout with COVID-19

Ex-U of L Cardinal noncommittal on vaccine

BY NOAH TRISTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OWINGS MILLS, Md. — It's been quite a couple of weeks for Lamar Jackson.

He tested positive for COVID-19 again, missing the beginning of training camp. While he was away, Buffalo's Josh Allen — another quarterback from Jackson's draft class — signed a big extension, raising more questions about how Jackson's negotiations are going with the Ravens.

Now Jackson is practicing again, trying to make up for lost time while adjusting to some important new teammates.

Jackson spoke to the media Monday for the first time since returning from the COVID-19 list. He began practicing Saturday. Jackson's positive COVID-19 test came right before the start of training camp. He also tested positive last season and missed a game.

"Just like last time probably — fatigued, if anything. I was sleeping a lot," Jackson said. "But I'm glad to be back."

Although Jackson was in good spirits Monday, he said the positive test was tough to take, especially given the timing.

"It was crazy. I was heartbroken, because I wasn't looking forward to that at all — right before camp," he said. "It was like, not again, not right now. But it's over with."

When asked if the Ravens have talked to him about getting vaccinated, he sounded noncommittal.

"I just got off the COVID list, so I've got to talk to my team doctors and try to see how they feel about it," he said. "Keep learning as much as I can about it, and we'll go from there."

Jackson said he tried to stay sharp by throwing in his backyard — his cousins served as receivers. Baltimore plays its first exhibition game Saturday night against New Orleans. The preseason games may not be all that significant for a player of Jackson's stature, but he could use time on the field.

Baltimore added receiver Sammy Watkins in the offseason and drafted receiver Rashod Bateman, part of an effort to improve what was the lowest passing output in the league a season ago.

"Sammy makes my job a lot easier, and my job is to make his a lot easier," Jackson said. "Even when we're doing scramble drills and stuff like that, he's fighting off defenders, getting open. I missed him in the end zone, little back shoulder, he was right there. I'm mad I missed him. I'm still mad right now."

As for Allen's contract, Jackson wasn't saying much about how that might affect his negotiations.

"That's good for him, but like I said, I'm not worried about that," Jackson said. "I'm just trying to work on getting better right now. I just got off COVID, I'm worried about my teammates, and we're trying to get somewhere. The time will come about that."

Coach John Harbaugh also indicated there wasn't anything new to report on that front.

"It'll happen when it's going to happen. It's best for both sides to happen, both sides want it to happen," he said. "There's really not a hurry."
